

Country living with designer edge

MURRAY Bridge is experiencing a boom so AVJennings has responded by releasing some of the most appealing allotments so far at its Pathways development.

On sale from Sunday, July 29, the Parkview release includes nine allotments in the perfect location next to the new reserve.

Sunday is also the first chance to register interest in an exclusive collection of eight designer homes - the first home and land release at Pathways.

The home packages will be available for purchase, off the plan over the next couple of months.

Homebuyers and investors alike have been attracted to Pathways - the only development of its kind in Murray Bridge.

It's an attractive place to live or invest due to the extensive parklands, a great location close to the river, the town centre and schools and safeguards on the quality of housing.

The latest release includes nine new allotments priced from $95,500.

The blocks range in size from 614 square metres to 2474 square metres, all in a premium location overlooking the new reserve and playground.

Five of the nine allotments are country living blocks, offering more than 2000 square metres of room to move.

The country feel is enhanced further by the nearby reserve, which includes shelter, a barbecue area, a playground and walking trails.

If you'd prefer to buy the complete package, the collection of eight designer homes will all include a host of impressive features that will offer a "move straight in" solution for homebuyers.

Extensive wetlands are being built and, when complete, they will include more than 6000 new plantings.
